

Equipping Tasmania Police with the ENFORCR® EVOAdapt Carrier

As a leader in law enforcement wearables across Australia and New Zealand, ADA partnered with Tasmania Police to supply officers with the advanced ENFORCR® EVOAdapt Carrier. This case study explores how our focus on collaborative design, custom solutions, and product innovation led to the successful development and rollout of a carrier that sets a new benchmark for officer safety, comfort, and performance.

The Challenge

A New Standard for Officer Protection

Tasmania Police required a next-generation ballistic carrier for its frontline officers. The solution needed to move beyond a one-size-fits-all approach, providing superior protection without compromising the comfort and mobility essential for modern policing. Key requirements included:

- Modularity
- Adaptable to changing environments
- Lightweight

The Solution: Collaborative Innovation in Action

Collaborative Prototyping

The initial design and prototyping phase was completed in just four months, incorporating direct feedback from Tasmania Police to refine the carrier for optimal field performance.

Tailored Supply Chain

A comprehensive support system was established, including customisable pouches, protective plates, and hi-vis integrations, ensuring every officer received gear tailored to their specific role.

Efficient Production

Following the successful prototyping, bulk production was scaled efficiently, enabling a state-wide rollout.

Key Innovations

Law enforcement officers face diverse challenges requiring adaptable gear. The ENFORCR® EVOAdapt Carrier offers a modular, lightweight solution that conforms to all body types. It ensures comfort and flexibility with advanced microclimate technology, reducing cognitive burden and enhancing focus during missions.

Modular design

Built-in SAP and HAP integration for comprehensive protection and adaptability, enhancing survivability.
